

Acts 21-23, Paul arrested in Jerusalem, a mad lib

Paul and his friends sailed in a _____ past the _____ of Cyprus and

(noun)

(noun, something big)

landed at _____, where they stayed with the Christians for _____ days.

(word starting with "T")

(a number)

The Holy _____ told the Christians that it would be dangerous for Paul in Jerusalem.

(noun)

Later a _____ named Agabus used Paul's _____ to tie his _____ and

(an occupation)

(noun)

(body part, plural)

_____. He said if Paul went to Jerusalem he would be tied up. The believers told Paul not to go, but he said he was ready to be put in _____ or even _____ for Jesus.

(body part, plural)

(a place)

(action verb, something that can be done to you)

Things went well for about a week in Jerusalem, but then some _____ from other places

(occupation, plural)

saw Paul at the _____ and said that Paul had been speaking against the _____

(a place)

(a thing)

of God. They dragged Paul away and were trying to kill him when a _____ commander

(adjective)

heard and took some _____ to find out what was going on.

(occupation, plural)

He arrested Paul and tried to find out what Paul had done, but the crowd was so angry that he had to take Paul to the _____.

(a place)

crowd how Jesus appeared to him and told him to preach to the _____, the crowd

(something alive, plural)

shouted that Paul deserved to _____, so the commander gave orders for Paul to be beaten with _____. But Paul told them that he was a Roman _____,

(action verb)

(noun, plural)

(noun)

so they didn't beat him, but did put him in _____.

(a place)

The commander still wanted to know why the Jews were so angry at Paul, so he had the chief _____ and the members of the _____ come.

(occupation, plural)

(word starting with "S")

Paul spoke with them, but they became angry again, so the commander had to rescue Paul again.

The next night God told Paul to be brave – that he would get to preach in _____.

(word starting with "R")