

Acts 27-28, Paul goes to Rome, a mad lib

Paul finally got to go to Rome. He and some other _____ got on a boat with a Roman (occupation, plural)

_____ named Julius. The trip was slow, so by the time they reached the _____ (occupation) (something big) of Crete, sailing had become _____ and Paul urged them to stay where they were.

(adjective)

But the _____ wanted to sail to a safer harbor, so when a south _____ (occupation) (noun)

began to blow, they headed out. But then a _____ came and drove them away from Crete.
(noun)

The sailors were scared and tied _____ around the boat and then threw the boat's (noun, plural)

_____ overboard. They didn't see the _____ for many days.
(noun, plural) (something hot)

But God sent an _____ to tell Paul that all of the people would be safe, so they should (something alive)

be _____ and not be _____.
(an emotion) (an emotion)

After _____ days they were finally approaching some land, so the sailors threw out
(a number)

_____ so that the boat wouldn't crash into _____.
(a number) (noun, plural) (noun, plural)

Paul insisted that the people eat some _____ and all _____ of them did.
(noun) (a number)

The soldiers planned to _____ the prisoners so that they couldn't escape, but Julius (action verb, something you can do to someone) wouldn't let them, and when the boat got stuck on a _____, everyone either swam or (noun)

held onto _____ to get to safety. Once on the island, called _____, (noun, plural) (word starting with "M") they built a _____ to get warm. Paul was helping gather _____ and got (noun) (noun, plural)

bit by a _____, but he was okay. He also healed the chief official's _____ (something alive) (something alive)

and anyone else who needed it. Once winter was over, they sailed away, heading for Rome.

Once they arrived, Paul got to stay in a _____, but with a _____ to guard (noun) (an occupation)

him until his trial. And there Paul stayed for _____ years, preaching to anyone who came to visit and writing _____ to the _____ he had visited.
(a number)

(noun, plural) (place, plural)