

Jesus Heals the Centurion's Servant, a mad lib

In Jesus' time, the country he lived in, _____, was part of the Empire of _____
(a proper noun [a noun that needs to be capitalized])

_____. This empire had soldiers all over to make sure that no one tried
(a country)

to _____.

(verb – something a person can do)

One day when Jesus was in the _____ of Capernaum, a man came up to him.
(noun)

This man was a centurion: he was in charge of _____ soldiers and they had to do (a number)

whatever he wanted, even if he told them to _____ or to _____.
(verb – something a person can do) (another action verb)

This centurion (we don't know his name, maybe it was _____) came to Jesus and said,
(a person's name)

“Lord, my _____ servant is very _____. He may even _____.”
(adjective) (adjective) (action verb)

Jesus replied that he would come heal the servant.

The centurion said, “I am not _____ enough for you to come to my _____.
(adjective) (noun)

He added, “I am in charge of many soldiers, and if I tell them to _____, they will do (action verb)

so. All you have to do is _____ the _____ and my servant will be healed.”
(another action verb) (noun)

Jesus was _____ by what the centurion said.
(an emotion)

He said to the _____ around him, “I haven't found anyone in my country (noun, plural)

with as much _____ as this man has!”
(noun)

Then he told the centurion to go back home – that his _____ had made it happen.
(noun)

The centurion went back home and found that his servant was _____, (adjective)

just as Jesus had said.
